

ABSTRACT

- [0056] A computing system is configured to identify product attributes, including components, associated with a product and to resolve the attributes to determine licensing dependencies for the product. In another embodiment, the
- 5 licensing dependencies are resolved with other product attributes to identify a potential license for the product.